

DR. ANKE HOEFFLER

Professor of Development Research, Department of Politics & Public Administration,
University of Konstanz

Dr. Anke Hoeffler is a Professor of Development Research at the Department of Politics & Public Administration at the University of Konstanz. In 2019 she received an Alexander von Humboldt Professorship, Germany's most valuable international research award. Previously, she was a research officer at the Centre for the Study of African Economies (CSAE) at the University of Oxford. She holds a Diplom in Volkswirtschaftslehre from the University of Würzburg and an MSc in economics from Birkbeck College, University of London. She received her DPhil in economics from the University of Oxford in 1999.

Her research interests are interdisciplinary and focus on the social causes of excess morbidity and mortality. Her development research group provides a forum for researchers from across the disciplines to collaborate on violence related topics, spanning organized political violence (civil war, terrorism) and interpersonal violence (homicide, assault, intimate partner violence and physical punishment of children).
