SECTION 2

ENTERPRISE REGISTRATION

Article 12. Enterprise registration

Enterprise registration is the State's approval that a person or juristic person, whether foreign or domestic, has properly given notice of registration of the establishment of his/her enterprise in the Lao PDR.

A regulation on enterprise registration shall be separately stipulated.

Enterprise registration is done once for the whole business duration of an enterprise.

Article 13. Notification of enterprise registration

A person having the intention to conduct business in Lao PDR shall give notice by submitting an application for enterprise registration to the concerned government agencies as stipulated in this Law.

Article 14. Steps and time for consideration of enterprise registration

After receiving the application for enterprise registration, the agency for the commercial sector shall verify whether the business activity that the applicant intends to carry on is in the Negative List or not. If it is not included in the Negative List, the registrar of the agency for the commercial sector shall consider the application within no more than ten working days from the date the application is received.

In case the business activity is included in the Negative List, the agency for the commercial sector shall immediately submit the application to the relevant sectoral agency. The relevant sectoral agency shall consider and give an answer to the agency for the commercial sector within no more than ten working days, except if the business activity requires technical verification for more time than that. After receiving the answer, the agency for the commercial sector shall consider the application within no more than three working days.

Rejection of issuance of an enterprise registration certificate shall be made in writing with a clear and reasonable explanation of the rejection to the applicant.

and paying tax for twelve months, the registrar concerned shall notify the enterprise in question to come for explanation. Failing to come within ten working days from the date the notification is received or unreasonable explanations will lead the enterprise concerned to be considered as having stopped operation and to be dissolved following the procedures as stipulated in this Law.

Article 18. Alteration of registered matters of an enterprise

Alteration of registered matters of an enterprise such as its objective or capital after registration shall be reported to the registrar concerned within one month from the date the altered matters are agreed on, except for the alteration of matters relating to business in the Negative List which shall be made in compliance with paragraph 2 Article 14 of this Law.

The enterprise that has registered matters in error or reported the alterations later than stipulated in the paragraph 1 of this Article, whether or not intentionally, can not set up the untruth of such matters against, or cannot be exonerated from, liability to an innocent outside person.

Article 19. Disclosure of registered matters

Any person or organization is entitled to see or copy the registration documents of enterprises filed with the registrar. These registration documents include all documents that the enterprises submit for their registration as stipulated in this Law. The person requesting copying must pay fees based on the relevant regulation.

Other documents, in addition to the documents mentioned in paragraph 1 of this Article, can be disclosed only with the permission of the relevant enterprises unless otherwise provided by law.

Article 20. Registered capital

An individual enterprise's registered capital is the capital reported by the owner to the registrar for its registration.

The registered capital of a partnership or company is the total share value as stipulated in subparagraph 4 Article 33 and subparagraph 4 Article 81 of this Law. This registered capital in other words is called the "stated capital" of the partnership or company.

The relevant sectoral agency is entitled to impose a minimum registered capital as a criterion for registration of an enterprise for some critical business activities, but this can be done only with the government's approval.

The registered capital must be accurate. In case of violation, the violator shall be liable before the law for the false statement.

Article 23. Authorizing other persons to use an enterprise name or enterprise registration

Authorizing another person to use an enterprise name or enterprise registration shall be based on a written contract and be in accordance with the Contract Law of the Lao PDR.

In case the authorization of use of the enterprise name or enterprise registration has been made without a written contract, but if there is evidence to believe that the enterprise concerned knows about it without taking any action to object, or supports the person that used it, [the use of the name] shall be deemed to have valid authorization.

Article 24. Liability for authorizing another to use an enterprise name or enterprise registration

A person allowing another person to use his/her enterprise name or enterprise registration shall be liable to third persons as agreed in the contract or as stipulated in the law.

A person assigning a person lacking capacity to use his/her enterprise name or enterprise registration shall be liable for the assignee's action.

A person shall jointly be responsible for the action of the persons or juristic persons prohibited by law, if he/she authorizes them to use his/her enterprise name or enterprise registration.

It is prohibited for a State company to allow another person to use its enterprise name or enterprise registration. In case of violation, the violators shall be liable to outside parties by themselves.

Article 25. Transfer of enterprise name and its prohibitions

An enterprise name may be transferred in cases:

1. Where it is transferred together with all an enterprise's businesses, including its rights and obligations;
2. Where the enterprise is dissolved in the proper manner.

The transferee, after proper transference as mentioned in subparagraph 1 above, shall notify the transferred enterprise's debtors and creditors within sixty days and the registrar concerned within five working days from the date the transfer is made.

Improper transfer of the enterprise name in any manner, including market monopolization by transfer of an enterprise name, is prohibited.

The transfer of a trade name shall not be done in favor of joint monopoly over the market. In case of violation, both transferor and transferee shall be liable before the relevant law of the Lao PDR.

The transfer of a State company's name to another enterprise in a different sector is prohibited.

Article 26. Cessation of an enterprise name

An enterprise name shall cease together with the enterprise's dissolution. The owner of the enterprise name, after cessation of the name, shall remove any sign containing such name within seven days from the date its cessation is reported.

The business operation of a person or juristic person using a ceased name or an enterprise registration of a dissolved enterprise shall be deemed as business operation without enterprise registration.

The reply period for objections shall not be less than two months from the date the notification is received. A creditor who fails to reply within the mentioned period shall be deemed to have no objection;

2. Advertise through any mass media at least ten times by giving notice of the period for reply and the contents as stipulated in subparagraph 1 of this Article.

Article 114. Objection and responsibility for notification

The objection of any creditor may cause the limited company not to be able to reduce its capital, except [after] such creditor's debts have been paid.

If any creditor has not received the notification for reduction of capital by the fault of the limited company, the limited company shall pay the debt to that creditor within no more than one year from the date of the shareholders meeting that has adopted the resolution for reduction of capital.

In case it is the fault of the creditor it shall be deemed that the creditor has no objection.

Article 115. Registration of increase or reduction of capital

A limited company having an increase or reduction of capital as specified in this Part C shall register for such with the registrar concerned as follows:

1. The registration for an increase of capital shall be made within ten working days from the date determined for payment of the additional shares subscribed;

2. The registration for a reduction of capital shall be made within ten working days from the date of having no objection or from the date of having paid the debts for the creditor who has objected to the capital reduction.

The limited company, after registration of the increase or reduction of capital, shall notify the public through the mass media at least one time within ten working days from the date of such registration.

The application for registration of capital alteration shall consist of a list of the names of shareholders whose share values or number of shares have increased or decreased, nationality, address, numbers of the share certificates and the number of shares held.

D. Director and board of directors of a limited company

Article 116. Director

A director is an agent of the limited company. The relationship between the director, the limited company and outside persons shall be based on the law concerned.

A director of the limited company has no salary but receives an annual honorarium and remuneration for each meeting at the rate or in the amount agreed upon by the shareholders meeting, except for a director appointed from outside persons or as otherwise agreed.

All activities of the director shall be within the scope of the powers and duties as described in the bylaws of the limited company and shall be under the supervision of the shareholders meeting.

A limited company may have several directors depending on the need of the limited company.

If a limited company has several directors but assigns one of them to solely have power to engage in making contracts in the name of the limited company, such a director is called the “Executive Director.”

In case the president of the board of directors is simultaneously appointed to be the Executive Director, such person will be called the “President Director.”

Article 117. Qualifications of a director

A director of the limited company shall have the following qualifications:

1. Not be a juristic person;
2. Be a person with full capacity;
3. Not be a bankrupt person who has not passed the restricted period for conducting business as posed by the court's order;
4. Has never been in prison for a crime relating to fraud or embezzlement.

Article 118. Appointment or removal of a director

A director is appointed according to the cases below:

1. The first director is appointed by the statutory meeting of the limited company;
2. A subsequent director is appointed by the shareholders meeting;
3. The post of a director vacant between two shareholders meetings shall be filled by the meeting of the board of directors. The appointment of the mentioned director, in the case the limited company has no board of directors, shall be stipulated in the bylaws.

A director of a limited company is dismissed by the shareholders meeting regardless of how the director has been appointed.

The dismissal of a director may be executed at any time if there is sufficient ground for such action, including mistrust.

A shareholder or the board of directors of a limited company is not entitled to bring a law suit to the court for the appointment or removal of a director, except when the appointment or removal violates the procedure as determined in this Law or the bylaws of the limited company.

Article 119. Method of voting for appointment or removal of a director

Voting for the selection or removal of a director may be executed by two methods, namely, cumulative voting and straight voting.

Cumulative voting means the permission for each shareholder to multiply the number of shares he/she holds by the number of candidates to be elected then casting his/her votes for a candidate or several candidates that he/she elects to be a director. The counting of votes shall regard one share as one vote. The candidate for whom the most votes are cast shall be elected as a director.

The dismissal of a director elected by cumulative voting can be

A shareholder must return money in the proportion that director has paid in violation of the bylaws of the limited company.

The civil liabilities of the director to outside persons shall correspond with the laws.

Article 122. Liability for misconduct of directors

The limited company shall be liable for the misconduct of a director when any misconduct has been adopted by the shareholders meeting as prescribed in subparagraphs 1 to 4 Article 121 of this Law.

[In case of] a violation of the scope of power and duties assigned to the directors, officers or employees that is not a violation of the scope of business purpose of the limited company, the latter shall be liable to outside persons. The internal liabilities among the limited company and directors, officers or employees of the limited company shall be executed in accordance with the laws concerned.

Article 123. Measures against a director's misconduct

The limited company shall take measures against a director who commits misconduct as specified in Article 121 of this Law. The detailed measures against the director shall be stipulated in the bylaws of the limited company.

In the case the limited company has not taken any measures as described in paragraph 1 of this Article, one or more shareholders, whose shares account for four percent of the total contributed shares of the limited company may notify in writing the limited company to fine or suspend [the director involved in] such conduct.

[In case of] failure to act or improper action by the limited company against the violating director, the mentioned shareholder is entitled to, on behalf of the limited company, bring a law suit for the court's decision to fine or suspend such misconduct of the director concerned.

Article 124. Performance of a director's duties in the name of limited company

The performance of the duties of a director is classified into two types, namely, the performance of the duties as an agent of the limited company and the performance of specific duties (performing duties as an individual).

The performance of duties as an agent of the limited company shall comply with the laws concerned. This provision shall similarly apply to the officers or employees of the limited company.

Performance of the specific duties of the directors includes:

1. Managing the business of the limited company to properly operate as specified in the contract of incorporation, the bylaws and the resolutions of the shareholders meeting;

2. Call for payment of shares in the amount and period of time as specified;

3. Managing and using the capital of the limited company in compliance with its purposes;

4. Setting up the accounting books, maintaining and keeping all of the limited company's documents;

5. Cooperating with the auditor in explaining the authenticity and the source of data and informa his/her limited company, unless otherwise agreed by the shareholders meeting;

3. Conduct any business with his/her own limited company whether such operation is for his/her own interest or for the interest of another person, unless otherwise agreed;

4. Borrow the limited company's money by himself/herself, or by his/her family's member or close relatives, except as otherwise stipulated in the bylaws of the limited company. Th

Resignation of a director shall be effective from the date the director's notice for resignation is received by the limited company.

The board of directors shall, in the case all of its members are terminated from office, continue to carry out the necessary tasks until the new board of directors has replaced it except as otherwise ordered by the court as prescribed in subparagraph 3 of this Article.

Article 128. Registration book for directors

A registration book for directors is composed of:

1. Name, nationality, date month year of birth and address of directors;
2. Types of share, values, reference numbers of share certificates and numbers of shares held by each director;
3. Date, month and year of being elected to be directors.

The registration book of directors

2. Fill any director vacancy between two ordinary shareholders meetings;
3. Make the plan of the limited company's business activities and submit it to the shareholders meeting for approval;
4. Perform other rights and duties as stipulated in the bylaws of the limited company.

Article 131. Quorum of the board of directors

A quorum of the board of directors is subject to the decision of the board of directors itself but shall not be less than half of the total number of directors. In case there are only two directors, the quorum shall be two persons.

[If there is a] vacancy in office of any director but the number of directors necessary to form a quorum is sufficient, the board of directors may continue to conduct its activities until a new director has been appointed for replacement.

In case the number of non-vacant directors is lesser than the number necessary to form a quorum as determined in paragraph 1 of this Article, the board of directors can not continue to conduct any activities except an activity for the purpose of increasing [its membership] to the full number of directors.

Article 132. President and vice president of the board of directors

The president and vice president are elected from the directors.

The president of the board of directors leads the board of directors meeting, shareholders meeting and performs other rights and duties as determined in the bylaws of the limited company.

The vice president of the board of directors performs duties to assist the president as assigned.

The president who can not attend the board of directors' meeting or the meeting of shareholders shall empower any vice president to chair the meeting thereof. In case there is no or there is a vice president but he/she can not attend such meetings, [he/she] shall select any director to be the chairperson for that meeting.

The chairperson of the shareholders meeting for a limited company that has no board of directors shall be any director elected to chair the meeting thereof.

Article 133. Convening the board of directors meeting

Any director is entitled to convene a meeting of the board of directors.

A director shall attend the meeting by himself/herself. It is prohibited to allow another person to attend the meeting, except such person as has been unanimously agreed by the other directors. A proxy or representative may raise opinions but he/she is not entitled to vote.

If it is necessary, the board of directors may hold a meeting, the so called “informal meeting” through any means of media.

Article 134. Resolutions and the record of the board of directors meeting

A resolution of the board of directors meeting will be effective only when there are more than half of the votes of the directors attending the meeting. A director shall have one vote.

The president of the board of directors, as a director, votes the same way as other directors do. If the result for such voting is equal, the president has the right to make one more vote for the decision.

A director who has a special interest or related direct interest in the resolution to be voted shall not be allowed to vote.

The voting for resolutions of informal meetings shall be stipulated in the bylaws of the limited company by describing in detail the voting methods while using any means of media.

Each board of directors meeting shall have a record or report on the meeting. The record of the board of directors meeting shall be kept in the headquarters of the limited company to be available for the shareholders to see or inspect, except documents or information that are considered as trade secrets or the competitive strategy of the limited company.

Article 135. Officers and employees of limited company

The limited company's officers consist of a manager, secretary, accountant and other officers.

The limited company's officers are appointed or removed by the board of directors or the director if the limited company has no the board of directors. Employees of the limited company are hired or fired by the manager.

The limited company's officers receive salaries. The employees receive wages as their return. The officers' rates of salary and employees' wage shall be approved by the shareholders meeting of the limited company.

The limited company's officers and employees shall perform their rights and duties as authorized.

The relations between directors and officers and between the director and employees of the limited company shall be based on the laws concerned.

Hiring and assigning duties must be made in writing by specifying in detail the rights and duties assigned with the signature of the assignor.

The director, in the case of a limited company that has no the manager appointed, shall perform the manager's rights and duties, thereof.

E. The shareholders meeting of the limited company

Article 136. Shareholders meetings

The shareholders meeting is the supreme organ of the limited company. There are two types of shareholders meeting, namely, the ordinary meeting and the extraordinary meeting.

The ordinary meeting shall be held at least once a year. The time period to hold such meeting shall be fixed in the bylaws of the limited company.

An extraordinary meeting may be held at any time whenever necessary such as vacation of [the post of] any auditor.

An extraordinary meeting may convened in the following cases:

1. When more than half of the directors have agreed to hold a shareholders meeting;

2. When a shareholder requests the court and the latter orders [the limited company] to hold the meeting;

3. When shareholders who hold shares equal to at least twenty percent of total contributed shares request holding of a meeting.

For convening a meeting as said in subparagraph 3 of this Article, the shareholders mentioned above shall subscribe their names to a letter and then submit it to the board of directors or the director by specifying the purpose of the request to hold the meeting. After receiving the letter, within thirty days from the date the letter requesting to hold the meeting is received, the board of directors or the director must hold the extraordinary meeting.

Article 137. Notice to shareholders before holding the meeting

At least five working days before holding the ordinary or extraordinary meeting, the board of directors or the director shall send a notice to all shareholders regarding the date, opening and closing time, and venue of the meeting together with all necessary documents relating to the meeting.

The board of directors or the director, in the case the shareholders meeting is postponed, shall proceed to hold the next meeting the same way as addressed in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Giving notice to the shareholders may be made by directly sending a notice or through the appropriate means of mass media.

Article 138. Quorum

The limited company shall determine the quorum of the and the rules for conducting the meeting in its bylaws. In case there is no such provision stipulated, the quorum shall be at least two shareholders attending the meeting with more than half of shares contributed.

The limited company's bylaws may define a quorum as otherwise agreed but it shall not be less than the quorum mentioned in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Void shares resulting from transfer, even if their shareholder attends the meeting, can not be counted to be included in the quorum of the shareholders meeting.

Article 139. Agenda of the meeting

The chairperson of the meeting shall keep and follow the order of the meeting's agenda as agreed. Alteration of the order of the meeting's agenda may be done only when there are votes of more than half of the shareholders attending the meeting.

The shareholders meeting may put an additional matter on the agenda if it is proposed by shareholders with a number of shares more than one third of paid shares.

In the case there is a matter that needs more time for consideration, the meeting may agree to postpone the matter to consider it at another time by holding an additional meeting without carrying out the summoning procedures for such meeting as said in Article 137 of this Law.

Article 140. Venue and rules of a meeting

The shareholders meeting shall be held at the headquarters of the limited company, except in the case of necessity or it is otherwise agreed.

After two hours from the appointed time for the meeting, if a quorum is not present, the chairperson of the meeting is entitled to order suspension of the meeting thereof.

A new meeting shall be set within ten working days from the date of suspension of the [prior] meeting and this time the meeting may be conducted regardless of whether or not a quorum is present.

Article 141. Restriction on voting

Any shareholder's voting rights may be restricted in the following cases:

1. A case as described in the bylaws of the limited company;
2. The shareholder has not fully paid the shares, unless otherwise agreed;
3. Be a shareholder of a bearer share except where before the holding of the meeting he/she has displayed such share to the board of directors or the director ;
4. Be a shareholder who has a special interest or related direct interest in the matter to be voted on for adoption.

Determination of the shareholder as said in subparagraph 4 of this Article shall be decided by the shareholders meeting.

Article 142. Assigning a proxy to attend a meeting

A shareholder may assign any proxy to attend the meeting on his/her behalf but such assignment shall be made in writing and handed over, before the holding of the meeting, to the board of directors or the director, which shall have the following main contents:

1. Name of the proxy and of the shareholder assigning [him//her];

2. Number of shares of the shareholder assigned;

3. The meeting's venue, time and the terms of the assignment. In the case of authorizing the proxy to vote on his/her behalf, such a statement shall be shown.

The proxy has equal votes to the votes of the assigning shareholder, except as provided otherwise in the assignment.

Article 143. Resolutions of the shareholders meeting

The resolutions of the shareholders meeting are classified in two types, namely, general resolutions and special resolutions.

General resolutions shall become effective only when the counted votes for are more than half of the votes attending the meeting with the counting of one share equal to one vote.

Article 144. Special resolutions of the shareholders meeting

3. Increase or reduction of capital;
4. Merger or dissolution of the limited company;
5. Sale or transfer of all the business or a substantial part of the limited company to another person;
6. Purchase or acquisition of the business of another enterprise;
7. Vote for maintaining the status of a limited company when the numbers of its shareholders exceeds thirty persons.

The special resolution shall, within ten working days from the date of the resolution, be registered with the registrar concerned.

Article 145. Method of adopting a resolution

Voting for special resolutions or general resolutions of the shareholders meeting may be conducted by poll or in an open manner depending on the decision of each meeting.

Article 146. Protection of minority shareholder rights and interests

A resolution of the shareholders meeting shall be effective when there are votes as mentioned in Article 143 and 144 of this Law, but thereafter if it appears that the resolution that was been objected to by minority shareholders causes serious damage to the limited company, the latter shall compensate the minority shareholders for such damage as agreed.

Article 147. Nullification of the resolution

A resolution of the shareholders meeting may only be nullified by the court decision. The court may come to the decision to nullify such resolution when there are the cases below:

1. Violation of the bylaws or the contract of incorporation of the limited company;
2. Violation of the rules for voting;
3. Breaching the rules on notification before holding the meeting as prescribed in Article 137 of this Law.

Article 148. Persons having the right to request nullification of the meeting's resolution

The persons who are entitled to request the court to nullify a resolution of the shareholders meeting are the shareholders and the board of directors.

In case of the death or lack of capacity of any shareholder, his/her heir or guardian has the same right to request the court to nullify a resolution of the shareholders meeting.

The request for nullification of the meeting's resolution shall be made within sixty days from the date the shareholders meeting has voted for such resolution.

Article 149. Rights and duties of the ordinary meeting

The main rights and duties of an ordinary meeting are as follows:

1. Adopt the bylaws and contract of incorporation of the limited company;
2. Elect the director or agree to set up a board of directors;
3. Elect the auditors;
4. Decide the annual honorarium and remuneration for meetings or the salary of the directors;
5. Decide the officers' salary, the wage of the auditor and employees of the limited company. The wage of an auditor who has appointed by the court as said in paragraph 3 Article 155 of this Law will be fixed by the court;
6. Approve the summary report on the business operations, statement of income and expenses and the business plan of the limited company;
7. Adopt the method of dividend distribution;
8. Exercise other rights and duties as it sees necessary.

An extraordinary meeting performs rights and duties in necessary matters occurring between two ordinary meetings.

F. Finances of a limited company

Article 150. Distribution of dividends

The distribution of dividends shall be made in percentage rate equal to the shares contributed, unless otherwise agreed. Before distribution of dividends, the approval of the shareholders meeting is required.

It is prohibited for the limited company to distribute dividends when there still are accumulated losses.

In the case of a violation as specified in paragraph 2 of this Article that causes disadvantages to a creditor of the limited company, a creditor may bring a law suit against shareholders to return the dividends distributed, but such action shall be undertaken within one year from the date the dividend has been distributed.

Article 151. Reserve funds

There are two types of reserve fund, namely, the compulsory reserve fund and other provisional reserve fund.

The compulsory reserve fund is a fund to prevent the risk of business and the limited company shall annually, after deducting losses, put ten percent of the net profit into such fund. When this reserve fund accumulates half of the registered capital, the limited company may suspend such deduction, unless otherwise provided by the bylaws of the limited company.

Other provisional reserve funds may be established as agreed in meeting of shareholders.

Article 152. Use of the reserve fund

The compulsory reserve fund of the limited company shall only be used to recover from the losses of the limited company, unless otherwise provided by law. Other provisional reserve funds of the limited company may be used for recovery from losses if the shareholder's meeting has approved it.

2. Inspect the limited company's accounts at any time as it is seen necessary;

H. Merger and dissolution of a limited company

Article 159. Merger of the limited company

A limited company may merge with other companies to become any of the existing companies or a new company.

A limited company may merge only when:

1. There is a special resolution as specified in Article 144 of this Law;

2. There has been notice to the creditors, through any means of mass media at least three times within ten working days from the date of having such resolution, to express their objections within sixty days from the date the creditor has received the notification. The creditors making no objection or failing to reply within such period shall be deemed as having no objection;

3. There has been registration as a new enterprise.

Objection and the effect of merger of the limited company shall be the same as stipulated in Article 52 of this Law.

Article 160. Reason for dissolution

A limited company may be dissolved for two reasons, namely:

Article 169. Application of the provisions on liquidation of the ordinary partnership

In addition to the provisions as determined in this subsection I, Section 2 Part V, the liquidation of the limited company shall be executed in compliance with Article 62 on the rights and duties of the liquidator, Article 63 on performance of the duties of multi-liquidators, Article 65 on the duties of the liquidator after liquidation, Article 66 on the responsibility of the liquidator and Article 67 on notification of the dissolution and permanent withdrawal of the enterprise registration under this Law.

J. Sole limited company

Article 170. Establishment of a sole limited company

For establishment of a sole limited company, the following steps must be taken:

1. Fully contribute the shares in the name of sole limited company as stipulated in paragraph 1 Article 172 of this Law;

Article 171. Notification of enterprise registration

Enterprise registration of a sole limited company shall require the following documents:

1. Application and assignment certificate for the appointment of the manager, if any;
2. The bylaws of the sole limited company;

All documents said above shall be signed by the shareholder and the manager, if the shareholder has appointed one thereof.

Article 172. Contribution and transfer of shares of a sole limited company

The shareholder of a sole limited company shall fully contribute his/her shares, whether in kind or in cash, before registration of the enterprise.

The shares of the sole limited company, after its enterprise registration, are not subject to withdrawal, but they are transferable and heritable.

A sole limited company, within thirty days from the date of enterprise registration, shall submit its share certificates to the registrar concerned for approval.

Share certificates of a sole limited company are not negotiable.

Article 173. Having more than one shareholder

A sole limited company having more than one shareholder, shall alter its name to the name of a limited company and shall carry out [procedures] in accord with A to I Section 2 Part V of this Law or otherwise dissolve.

Article 174. Shareholder's rights and duties

Article 176. Contract to hire a manager

The contract to hire the manager of a sole limited company shall be made in writing as stipulated in the Contract Law. The hiring contract shall contain particulars relating to rights, duties, wages and the liabilities of the parties and termination of the contract.

The relationship among the manager, the sole limited company and outsiders shall be based on the relevant law.

Article 177. Restrictions on hiring managers

The hired manager is not entitled to conduct business competitive with the sole limited company as follows:

1. Conduct business that has the same or similar type of business as the sole limited company, whether on his/her own account or on the account of another person, unless otherwise agreed by the shareholder;
2. Be the partner with unlimited liability of a partnership conducting the same or similar type of business as the sole limited company, unless otherwise agreed by the shareholder.

Article 178. Application of the provisions of the limited company

In addition to the provisions as determined in subsection J, Section 2 of this Part, the limited company's provisions on increases or reduction of capital, finance, audit, merger, dissolution and liquidation shall be applied to a sole limited company.

SECTION 3 PUBLIC COMPANIES

A. General principles and establishment

Article 179. Public company's principle on the number of shareholders

A public company shall have as founding shareholders at least nine persons and an auditor from the date of its enterprise registration.

A public company with a number of shareholders less than nine persons shall be dissolved and carry out the liquidation prescribed in subsection I Section 2 Part V of this Law.

Based on the resolution of the shareholders meeting, the director appointed as in the two cases mentioned above shall be removed by the Minister of Finance, if it is at the central level, or the Governor, if it is at the provincial level.

Article 206. Termination of a director

The director of a State company may be terminated on the following grounds:

1. The grounds as stipulated in subparagraphs 1 to 4 Article 127 of this Law;
2. The Minister of Finance, if it is at the central level, or the governor, if it is at the provincial level issues the decision for removal.

Resignation of the director shall be effective from the date of approval of the Minister of Finance, if it is at the central level, or the governor, if it is at the provincial level and notice of the resignation shall be given to the registrar concerned.

Article 207. Board of directors

A State company with a number of directors more than three persons shall establish a board of directors. In the case of necessity, a State company having two directors may also set up a board of directors.

The rights and duties of the board of directors as mentioned in Article 130 of this Law shall also apply to the board of directors of a State company.

SECTION 4

SHAREHOLDERS MEETING OF A STATE COMPANY

Article 208. Proxy of the State's shareholder

The shareholder of a State company is represented by the shareholding proxy of the agency for the host sector and the agency for the financial sector, unless otherwise agreed by the government.

The relevant sectoral agencies as mentioned in paragraph 1 above shall have as their shareholding proxies at least two persons who are appointed, based on the proposal of the agency for the host sector, by the Minister of Finance, if it is at the central level or the Governor, if it is at the provincial level. In the case of change, a shareholding proxy shall be appointed as a replacement no later than thirty days from the date such change has occurred.

The shareholding proxy of a relevant sectoral agency as mentioned above is a person who exercises the rights and performs the duties of the State as the shareholder in each State company.

The shareholding proxy of the State has no salary. The shareholding proxy shall be appointed for a period of one year.

shareholding proxies, after a decision is made by the number of votes as mentioned in subparagraph 1 of this Article, shall assign a shareholding proxy to vote on their behalf.

The shareholders meeting of a State company may consider and make decisions on all matters relating to the business of the State company, except the matters identified in Article 211 of this Law.

Article 211. Matters to be proposed for approval

The government makes the decision for a State company, at central level and the Governor makes decision for the State company, at provincial level, on matters relating to increases or reductions of capital, dissolution, merger of a State company with a State company or a State company with other types of enterprise to become a State company and purchasing or transferring business of other types of enterprise to be under the ownership of a State company.

The matters needing only to be proposed for approval by the government are as follows:

1. The sale of shares as stipulated in paragraph 1 Article 191 of this Law;
2. The sale or transfer of a State company's business that leads to a change of ownership to be another type of enterprise;
3. Merger of a State company with another type of enterprise to become the latter.

When the government or the governor makes any decision on the matter mentioned in this Article, he/she/it shall also give detailed advice on the implementation of such decision.

FINANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY OF A STATE COMPANY

Article 213. Distribution of dividends

Distribution of dividends by a State company shall be based on the proportion of shares held by each shareholder. The remainder from the distribution to other shareholders is owned by the State and shall be transferred to the budget of the State as stipulated in the regulation concerned.

It is prohibited to distribute dividends when the State company has continuous losses in past years.

Article 214. Reserve fund

There are two types of the reserve fund, namely, the compulsory reserve fund and other provisional reserve funds.

The compulsory reserve fund is a fund to prevent the risk of business, which the State company shall annually, after deducting [its] losses, take ten percent of the net profit to [contribute to] such fund. When this reserve fund accumulates half of the registered capital, the State company may suspend such deduction, unless otherwise provided by the bylaws of the State company.

Other provisional reserve funds may be established as agreed in the meeting of shareholders. The regulation of the State on the fund for social welfare shall also be applied to a State company. The latter therefore is not allowed to establish such fund by itself.

The use of the State company's funds shall comply with the provision of Article 152 of this Law.

Article 215. Responsibility

The State company shall be treated by the State depending on each case below:

1. The State shall, in the case the State company profitably operates business, stimulate the State company by deducting money of not more than ten percent of its net profit to use for increasing salaries or may give another appropriate bonus for each year;

2. The State shall, in the case the State company operates business at a loss resulting from external factors that are uncontrollable or difficult to control, have an appropriate measure to help the State company so that it can be able to continue conducting business;

3. The director shall be, in the case the State company operates its business at a loss resulting from the director's lack of ability to manage the business, liable for not more than ten percent of the total losses. The director must be removed if the State company continuously operates business at a loss for two years;

4. The State may, in the case the losses are caused by the fault of directors, officers or employees of the State company, force the concerned person to be responsible for the damages by himself/herself and bring a law suit against him/her.

The details of encouragement bonus and responsibility for losses shall be fixed in a regulation issued separately.

SECTION 6

AUDIT AND AD HOC INSPECTION OF STATE COMPANIES

Article 216. Audits

A State company shall have an auditor from the date of its enterprise registration. A small size State company which is unable to permanently hire an auditor shall, before submission of the balance sheet and annual business report to the shareholders meeting for approval at least once a year, hire an auditor to inspect and certify the authenticity of the accounting documents.

The State company shall strictly execute the audit principles as stipulated in subsection G, Section 2 Part V of this Law.

Article 217. Ad hoc inspections

An ad hoc inspection may be based on the resolution of the shareholders meeting or the proposal of the agency for the host sector, and carried out by decision of the Minister of Finance, if it is at the central level or the governor, if it is at the provincial level. The resolution of the shareholders meeting shall comply with the provision of Article 210 of this Law.

Upon receiving such resolution or proposal, the Minister of Finance, if it is at the central level or the governor, if it is at the provincial level must nominate the inspector or inspection committee within thirty days to carry out the inspection in the State company concerned.

Article 218. Rights and duties of the inspector

The inspector has the following rights and duties:

1. Request the State company to supply documents for inspection;
2. Make inquiries of the relevant director, officers or employees of the State company;
3. Draft a report on the result of the inspection and submit it to the shareholders who requested such an inspection and to the Minister of Finance or the governor.

Article 219. Ad hoc expenses

The State company shall be, if the result of the inspection proves that it is at fault as alleged, responsible for the cost of the inspection. The responsibility of the person concerned inside the State company shall be based on the relevant law.

The State shall be, if the result of the inspection proves that the State company is not at fault as alleged, responsible for the cost of the inspection.

SECTION 7

PRIVATIZATION, MERGER, DISSOLUTION

AND LIQUIDATION OF STATE COMPANIES

Article 220. Transformation to be another type of enterprise

The State company may, if it is intentional or necessary, transform to be another type of enterprise as specified in subparagraphs 2 and 3 Article 211 of this Law.

Merger or transfer as stipulated in paragraph 1 of this Article shall lead to a change of the name of the State company to another name as jointly agreed with the other shareholders and in this case, the State becomes a shareholder of the new company established, except for the case that the State totally transfers its shares.

The State company that has been transformed to be another type of enterprise shall be set up, registered and operated on the basis of the principles of the other type of enterprise.

The agency for the financial sector as the State's shareholder of that kind of company shall follow the principles of such company. Selling or transferring the State's shares can be done only upon the approval of the government.

The financial sector is authorized to exercise, on behalf of the State, the rights and duties of a shareholder in another type of enterprise and protect the ownership of the State.

Article 221. Merger of State companies

A merger of a State company shall be carried out as follows:
